Governor Butler says he has been called worse and harder names than any public man in this country, but he prides himself over the fact that no newspaper ever called him a fool.

The best description of a pension agent that can be given is that "he is to the veterans of the late war what sutler was to the soldiers." It will be remembered by the soldiers that the sutler got most of his money.

Pendleton's civil service bill has turned the democratic party against him. They claim that by taking the spoils of office away from the victors, he will kill the party. If you want to throw the democratic party into hopeless despair, just adopt a stringent civil service reform.

George W. Curtis and the Hon. Homer Potter with several other gentlemen of wealth, have organized a society for the preservation of Niagara Falls. This is a very timely step. It would be too bad to have the falls stolen or in anywise marred of their beauty.

If President Arthur keeps in his mind the tomb on which is inscribed "Here sleep the unknown dead," he will never sign the Fitz John Porter relief bill. To approve this bill would be like demolishing with a sledge hammer, the monuments over the patriotic dead.

Some of the bolting republicans in the Illinois legislature want to bring Robert Lincoln into the senatorial race to defeat Governor Cullom who has been regularly nominated by the republicans. The republicans in Illinois should not ape the democratic party in making blunders.

Christina Nilsson has given twenty-four concerts this season, the receipts being $119,982, or an average of $5,415 for each concert. Miss Nilsson receives one half of the gross receipts, and as she sings from four to five nights a week, her income during the present tour is from $10,000 to 12,500 a week, more than that of any singer now living.

A very pertinent question put by the Hon. A. M. Thompson: "If the law holds the Chicago and Northwestern railroad company responsible for carrying John Smith from Chicago to Milwaukee in safety, after he had paid his money for that particular service, why should not the law hold Mr. C. D. Nash and his associates, who were owners of the Newhall house, responsible for the act if they roasted John Smith alive in their fire trap?"

The old hospital, and the last remnant of old Fort Crawford, at Prairie du Chien, was destroyed by fire on Saturday. This was one of the oldest forts in the west, and was such an interesting relic of past wars that it seems the government should have taken some pains to keep it in a state of good preservation. General Zachary Taylor was stationed in this fort before the Mexican war. Jeff Davis was a lieutenant under him there. This was the headquarters of the old American fur company, and the Astors made much of their money at this post.

A special dispatch from Eau Claire to the Evening Wisconsin says a more favorable season during the past three weeks could not suit the loggers better, if the weather had been made to order. There is a solid foundation to the roads everywhere, and they are being utilized to good advantage. These best competent to judge, are of the opinion that the log harvest in the Chippewa Valley will at least calculations reach between 750,000,000 and 800,000,000 feet. The Chippewa logging company will likely get in 600,000,000, over two-fifths of which will be cut by the Eau Claire mills. The estimated amount of logs left over from last season is placed at $8,000,000 feet, which includes about 47,000,000 feet harbored in the beef slough works. The operations in the woods will be pushed to the utmost limit as long as the favorable weather holds out.

There have been many speculations here and elsewhere regarding the plans of Congressman Williams when his term in congress expires, and the following from the Evening Wisconsin will set at rest many of the speculations that have been floating around since the election: "It is reported upon seeming good authority that Charles G. Williams, of Janesville, who has represented the Rock county district in congress during the last two years, will be appointed receiver of public moneys in the land office at Watertown, Dakota. The salary is $3,000 per year. Watertown is a thrifty and promising city, near which Mr. Williams owns a farm of 1,000 acres. The office therefore will nicely fit his plans for the future. He is particularly well qualified for the place, from his long experience in congress and his ample knowledge of the law; besides he is an honest man, and certain of the western land-office officials have not always been more honest than the law allows."

A pretty thorough study of the burning of the Newhall house in Milwaukee has led the Chicago Journal to maintain that Mr. Antisdell, the lessee of the hotel, is more to blame than anyone else for not providing against the calamity. "There was but one night watchman, and he had other duties to perform besides looking out for fire, and he was running the elevator when the fire was first discovered. The night clerk and bell boys do not seem to have made any effort to arouse the inmates after the alarm was given, and no employee of the house aroused a single guest, so far as the record shows. Nearly all of those who escaped the fearful tragedy testify to being awakened by the suffocating smoke or the roar of the devouring flames. Some of these guests aroused others, but the employes of the house were as impotent as the sleeping and doomed inmates themselves. Since the fire, bodies of men and women have been found in the debris resting upon wire mattresses, which goes to prove that they were suffocated in their beds, and died unconscious of their terrible fate."

THEIR ROYAL NIBS.

The Tour of the Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise.

How their Highnesses and the Honorable Disported Themselves.

An Enterprising Reporter Picked up a few Items on the Way.

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 16.—The Marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise have passed through this city en route to Charleston, South Carolina, by way of Richmond, Virginia. They came from St. Louis, having spent some time on the Pacific coast. Two sleeping carriages, one of them the private car of the Princess Louise, and a dining and baggage car made up the train engaged to transport His Royal Highness from St. Louis. The apartments were furnished with every luxury which royalty requires, and the attendants of the marquis and his wife were ready to do their master and mistress bidding. His lordship and his lady had the rear coach all to themselves and remained in their berths until the train reached Vincennes, where breakfast was served in the dining car as the train sped along with lightning rapidity. The repast was sumptuous one, and everything in season and out of season was presented on the royal tables, and one dish, which, though delicious, was not to the taste of the royal高貴者, was omitted. The ladies, however, washed down with chestnut and sherry, made the inner man and woman of the precious pair feel good, and they were as well pleased with the menu that the marquis gave the colored cook a $2 gold piece to be divided among his assistants, the waiters at the table.

After breakfasting in Vincennes, Lorne and his wife were in private of their own coach and didn't show themselves until after the train reached Louisville, when it had grown quite dark. The marquis and princess were sitting just outside of their section when their representative cast his eagle eye upon them. Both bowed and refused to answer any questions, except in monosyllables, and son-in-law looked as if he had affected the innocent reporter was a French or assassin.

There is nothing about either Lorne or his wife which would indicate blue blood. He is a short, heavy-set Scotlander, apparently about thirty-five or forty years of age.

The princess is of medium height, rather stout, and wears blue and yellow dress without any noticeable trimming. The royal couple are both quite unassuming, and are the ladies and gentlemen who make up the party.

Their suite consists of Miss McNeil and Miss Harvey, ladies in waiting to the royal couple, and Misses Winona and Anna, the maid-servants. Hon. Col. Wm. U. Foy, Lieutenant W. S. Joscelyn Bagot, Dr. Barstow, physician, and Col. Tourtalot, U. S. A. commissioned by Gen. Sherman to attend the royal party on their tour of this country.

While the marquis wouldn't talk, his friends, Hon. Colonel Bagot and Colonel Francis D. Winston, talked freely with your平原人和山地人, and all the people observed them. They thought the reporter ought to be satisfied with seeing the highnesses without putting them in terror of an interview, as no other man had enjoyed the same privilege.

"The marquis likes the country very much, and why shouldn't for the English and Americans at all care to be observed," observed the colonel, who is a young man, not over twenty-four or twenty-six years of age, but who seems to be on the warm side of the queen's son-in-law. "He admires your railroad system very much, and in that respect you are ahead of the English," was the second wise remark of the colonel.

It is generally understood by Col. De Winter, who is in charge of their trip, that the young couple are to be married in September last, which was of very little interest to anybody but the royal party. They only tarried in two cities of the United States, San Francisco and Santa Barbara City, and have spent much of their time trying to find a home among the colonies of representatives of Johnny Bull in British Columbia. They have been well treated everywhere, and speak kindly of the Americans.

All along the route crowds of people gathered at the stations, including men and women, to get a peep at real prince, but were all disappointed. At Mitchell, Seymour and North Vernon it seemed as though the whole population had come out. Small boys and "trotters" would, whenever the train stopped, jump on the platform and try to peer in at the windows and doors, excluding in a tone of disappointment, "Why don't his royal highness give us a look at his phiz?" At North Vernon Colonel De Winter sent the following cablegram to Woodstock castle, where a young prince has just been born to the Duke of Connaught: "I am glad to hear of Her Duchess' safe confinement."

The trip to Louisville was uneventful, and the train compassed the distance from North Vernon to Jeffersonville, fifty-one miles, in without a stop, in the remarkably quick time of two hours.

The royal coaches, with the exception of the dining-car, were transferred to the Louisville, Cincinnati & Lexington road, and the train sped along without delay to Lexington, where the journey will be continued over the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad to Richmond.

GARFIELD.

We did not consider himself an available candidate.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16.—A letter written from Solo, Ohio, to the Philadelphia Press has this gossip, coming from a personal friend of ex-President Garfield:

"The morning Garfield started for the Chicago convention he and I walked into this shop, and he bought a pair of six-dollar trousers. He paid very little attention to his dress, and did not seem to know or care much about his clothing, so long as he was comfortable. We took breakfast together that day, and had a long talk about the possible outcome of the convention. He was not deeply impressed with Sherman's chances, and I thought inclined decidedly to Blaine when his duty to the former was complete enough to permit him to go to the 'Plumed Knight.'

"How did he feel toward Grant?"

"He was unalterably opposed to his nomination. A friend wrote to him on the subject months before the convention, and received a reply which will give you his views as to Grant's candidacy. Here is what he said:

"WASHINGTON, Feb. 5, 1880.—MY DEAR JUDGE: I am glad, after so long an interval, to hear from you. I began to think you were lost to me forever, and could not find you. I am opposed to a third term under any and all circumstances; but I certainly am opposed to a third term under existing circumstances. I can conceive of a situation of public affairs in which the nation might need some one man as its service who had held the presidency two terms. But we are not in such a strait; nor have we such an actor."

"Hoping that you will soon bring the light of your countenance into this wretched city, I am, ever yours,

J. A. GARFIELD."

"Did he have any aspirations himself?"

"I do not believe he ever thought his election possible. I spoke to him upon the subject, and he said, 'I don't care whether the fight goes so bitter between Blaine and Grant; that new man would have to be taken. He admitted that this might be true, but said: 'I have never thought of the presidency. Perhaps in ten years from now, after I have rounded out a little more in public life, I may think of it; but I have no ambition to be president. No man who has been a senator or a representative will be in a position for me after others are off the field. I am a young man yet. I can turn the subject, but he seemed to feel no interest in it whatever, and by way of concluding the conversation upon that subject said: 'I do not want to make a fool of myself by getting the presidential favor at my time of life. I prefer to remain in the Senate or with you, where I have been placed. I believe I would rather do that than be president now.'

THE PLANTERS' HOUSE.

Burglars Suspected of Having Fired the Hotel at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Jan. 16.—The Planters' house fire is now charged to burglars, who, it is surmised, secured themselves until they fancied that all in the house were asleep, and then set the fire, intending to create a panic in which they might play their trade. There is much to sustain this view. The guests of the hotel, in rushing out for shelter after the first alarm had been given, left their valuables in the rooms. Some were cautious enough to lock their doors, but others, in their fright, left them open, and the property became an easy prey to the thieves, who were then already probably prowling about the premises. Evidence that thieves were at work actively is abundant. Among the losers was R. S. Alexander, a traveling agent who lost a new suit of clothes, a diamond clasp-pin, and other jewelry of considerable value. He had left his room at the first alarm, and being informed of a fire, he ran to the window to look outside, and, as the fire was at night, he had to jump over the balcony railing to get to the ground. His clothes, his jewelry, and other personal effects had suddenly disappeared. J. S. Smith, a cotton factor, who lodged at the hotel with his family, was the first to notice the absence of his money, and the burglars in the hallway intent on their work of breaking in doors and rifling rooms of their contents. Dr. Hoffmuthauer, another guest, lost a valuable diamond clasp-pin, cuff-links, and other smaller personal effects, which in his hurry he had left in his room.

The coroner viewed the remains of the three victims of the hotel fire, and after examining several hours, was unable to determine whether they came to their death from burns—caused by an accidental fire. No injury was impeached and no effort made to determine the origin of the fire. The report that another man was missing proves unfounded.

SENATOR MCPHERSON.

The Suit of Rusting—Some Interesting Letters.

New York, Jan. 16.—The suit against United States Senator McPherson of New Jersey, by Joseph F. Rusting, seems to show that the senator is a fox, and several of his letters are at least peculiar as: "Don't come here till 10 o'clock to-night, and don't let any one see you come." Next follows a note inclosing a form of interview to be used if Mr. Rusting is the writer is attacked. Mr. Rusting is to say: "I confess I have tried to get information from Mr. McPherson, but was repulsed with the reply that he would be responsible for no statements made to a committee except those made by him. He would be responsible for no statement of which he is a member. I have been forced to unmask and dig out these facts with such assistance as he could have proffered me if he had known his whole duty in the matter."

On Oct. 3, 1880, and Oct. 3, 1880, passes are sent to Mr. Rusting, the suit not touching the passes to Clarendon, and many others, addressed to J. R. McPherson, and says: "I took this out in the name of Mr. Macay, because I did not know how the Eric felt about the past. You must pass under the name. I can give you no directions in the matter, further than you now have, concerning which is to get recommendation for car to land and water on road; and especially have you regard to Washington to secure legislation."

The Tariff Bill.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Senator Kellogg said yesterday that no tariff bill will be passed at this session of congress. A Republican member of the finance committee of the senate also said to-day that the outlook was exceedingly unpromising, and that in all probability, after a week's discussion, the friends of the tariff bill would see the impossibility of accomplishing anything, and drop the subject. Like predictions have been made within a day or two by prominent Republican members of the house.

Foreign Floods Subduing.

Pestri, Jan. 16.—The Danube has subsided everywhere above Wishaco, on the west arm of that river, but the fugitives cannot return home, as their houses are destroyed or filled by ice.

An Old Man's Better.

Have used Parker's Ginger Tonic for my bad cough and hemorrhage I have had twenty-five years. I feel like another man since I used it. Am 60 years past. Believe it sure to cure younger persons. A. Orner, Highspire, Pa.

The Blues.

We get many letters from druggists stating pleasant results from customers of bilious tempers having used Zopeza.

These subject to depression or low spirits, caused by indigestion or liver trouble, will be surprised how rapidly and pleasantly it acts. It corrects the secretions, strengthens digestion. Usually a 10-cent sample convinces one of its value.

INDIANA.
Short and Unimportant Session of the Legislature.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 16.—But short sessions were held in the senate and house yesterday, and the proceedings in the latter were altogether uneventful. The former adopted Senator Magee's resolution requesting the secretary of war to reconsider his refusal to make the appropriation for the improvement of the harbor at Michigan City voted by congress in the river and harbor bill. Senator Johnson introduced a resolution authorizing a special committee of five to devise some plan for the abolition of the present system of hiring convict labor in the prisons, and likewise the labor inmates of the reformatory and penal institutions, and to do away with the same, which should be entirely for the benefit of the state. He made an earnest argument in favor of the resolution and after it had been adopted the committee was made to consist of Senators Johnson, Fouke, Faulkner, Lindsey, and Ernst. This measure will meet with a most strenuous opposition on the part of the big boys which will have to be overcome. Several bills were introduced making it obligatory for hotel-keepers to provide private escapes for every room. It is evidently the intention of the Democratic majority to take the control of all the states institutions out of the hands of the governor and give it to the people. Senator Bell introduced a bill to consolidate the statistical and geological bureaus of the state, the chief officer to be appointed by the senate, and by Senator Johnson, to give the legislature the power of appointing trustees for the asylum for feeble-minded children.

NEBRASKA.

The Battle for the Senatorship.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 16.—The legislature adjourned after an hour's session yesterday afternoon. It is impossible to transact business preceding such a conflict as will occur this week over the senatorship. The hotels are swarming with men, but all confess themselves utterly in ignorance of the probabilities. Senator Van Wyck still remains and is understood to be either Saunders or Crosson. His room is crowded constantly. The special railroad committee are taking testimony to accumulate facts to assist legislation. When T. C. Cook, of Madison, was called to give his opinion, he said: "I have no idea what will happen." The bill introduced yesterday by Senator Magee to consolidate the statistical and geological bureaus of the state, the chief officer to be appointed by the senate, and by Senator Johnson, to give the legislature the power of appointing trustees for the asylum for feeble-minded children.

DOINGS IN CONGRESS.

Petitions and the Tariff Schedule in the Senate.—The Railroad "Consolidation" Bill in the House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—In the senate yesterday quite a number of petitions were presented. Mr. Vorhees presented a petition signed by eminent men in Indiana, favoring legislation putting an end to the monopoly of medical employment under the government by the regular school, and making all qualified physicians equal before the law in government service. By Mr. Farland, a petition against interference with the tariff on cotton seed oil. By Mr. Harrison, the first ballot gave Palmer 26; Harrison, 20; Morrison, 17; Dickey, 9; Springer, 15; necessary to a choice. Two more ballots were taken and on the fourth, the names of Springer, Morrison, and Dickey were withdrawn, and the roll was called for the last time. The vote gave Farmer 49 and Harrison 39, and the bill was passed. The nomination of Gov. Palmer was made unanimous on motion of Senator Merritt. The caucus then adjourned.

Innumerable caucuses occurred among the Republicans last night. Those who remained together, as did also those who are formed the crooks. The latter are very secret in their meetings, and when a man is chosen and proclaimed, it is he who makes his stand in the Senate in his position. Hon. L. L. Morrison, of Morgan, makes a similar announcement, as does also Charles Fuller of Boone, Parish, of Cook seems to be the most active of those who are changing the disengaged ones. The constitutional members, those who voted for the Waukegan resolution, are still alone or more last night in casting about for a dark horse; but who will be the innermost soul of the general assembly. Secretary Lucon was named, and others, but no agreement could be made. Hon. Isaias Morrison, finally took the front, and Gallatin followed, and got us. There is no use for us to kick any more. To be successful we must have seven. They are not in sight. There is no sense in protesting against fate. It has from good authority that there are a few Democrats who will in an emergency come to the rescue and vote for Cook. Those who participated in this cause were Parrish, Morrison, Fuller, Ward of Cook, and Lawrence. Senator Adams was not present.

The school Republicans held a caucus last night and decided that Senator Mason, of Cook, should air his name, make the nominating speech for Scalby Culom. The house Republicans had a caucus, and named Hon. David T. Luther, of Sauganaw to do the honors for Culom in the house.

The vote gave Farmer 49 and Harrison 39, and the bill was passed. The nomination of Gov. Palmer was made unanimous on motion of Senator Merritt. The caucus then adjourned.

Innumerable caucuses occurred among the Republicans last night. Those who remained together, as did also those who are formed the crooks. The latter are very secret in their meetings, and when a man is chosen and proclaimed, it is he who makes his stand in the Senate in his position. Hon. L. L. Morrison, of Morgan, makes a similar announcement, as does also Charles Fuller of Boone, Parish, of Cook seems to be the most active of those who are changing the disengaged ones. The constitutional members, those who voted for the Waukegan resolution, are still alone or more last night in casting about for a dark horse; but who will be the innermost soul of the general assembly. Secretary Lucon was named, and others, but no agreement could be made. Hon. Isaias Morrison, finally took the front, and Gallatin followed, and got us. There is no use for us to kick any more. To be successful we must have seven. They are not in sight. There is no sense in protesting against fate. It has from good authority that there are a few Democrats who will in an emergency come to the rescue and vote for Cook. Those who participated in this cause were Parrish, Morrison, Fuller, Ward of Cook, and Lawrence. Senator Adams was not present.

The school Republicans held a caucus last night and decided that Senator Mason, of Cook, should air his name, make the nominating speech for Scalby Culom. The house Republicans had a caucus, and named Hon. David T. Luther, of Sauganaw to do the honors for Culom in the house.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—In the senate yesterday quite a number of petitions were presented.

Mr. Vorhees presented a petition signed by eminent men in Indiana, favoring legislation putting an end to the monopoly of medical employment under the government by the regular school, and making all qualified physicians equal before the law in government service. By Mr. Farland, a petition against interference with the tariff on cotton seed oil. By Mr. Harrison, the first ballot gave Palmer 26; Harrison, 20;

Morrison, 17; Dickey, 9; Springer, 15;

necessary to a choice. Two more ballots were taken and on the fourth, the names of Springer, Morrison, and Dickey were withdrawn, and the roll was called for the last time. The vote gave Farmer 49 and Harrison 39, and the bill was passed. The nomination of Gov. Palmer was made unanimous on motion of Senator Merritt. The caucus then adjourned.
